GERMAN SUBMARINE SMASHES AN ENGLISH CRUISER

GERMANS IMPROVE POSITION

Allies Cannot Out-flank Them.

TRYING TO BREAK LINE

French and British Forces Are on the Offensive.

London, Oct. 16.—Two great battles, one in Northern France and Belgium, the other in Russian Poland, both with a front of 300 miles, have reached their height, but the public is allowed only an occasional glance of their progress through official communications, which frequently are widely at variance.

From the French report it appears that the western battle is going slowly but surely in favor of the allies. Under the pressure of the troops of the allies the Germans who started to advance on Calais and other French coast ports have been forced to evacuate the left bank of the Lys river, which is a considerable distance east of the points their advance guards reached last week.

Further east in the Lense district and southward between Arras and Albert, where the Germans made their initial attempt to work around the allies' left, the English and French have made "notable progress."

Evidence that the German assaults are being delivered with less force is conveyed in the intimation that between the Somme and the Oise the artillery tactics are not being followed up with infantry charges. It is possible they have withdrawn some of their troops from this position to strengthen their advance towards the coast, but it is considered this would be risky, as it might permit the armies to break through and interrupt the communications of their armies fighting north of the Aisne.

In the center the allies also have advanced, particularly toward Craonne, and several German trenches are reported to have been carried to the northeast of the road from Berry-au-Bac to Rheims and to the north of Prunay in the direction of Beine, which is slightly to the southeast of Rheims.

Shelling Rheims Cathedral.

All this shows a determined and partly successful attempt to drive the Germans away from Rheims, which was under bombardment again. The famous cathedral has been made the target of the German artillery once more, the Germans accusing the French of having used the towers for military purposes. The French advance in this vicinity also indicates an attempt to break the German front and force a wedge between the German right and left wings.

The French also claim an advance between the Meuse and the Moselle, and, after having repulsed the German attacks, say they have reached south of the road leading from Verdun to Metz. It probably is this fighting which the Germans referred to as having taken place in the region of Metz.

On the French right, where there has been quiet for some time, the Germans have attempted offensive tactics in the Ban de Sapt, north of St. Die, but this movement has been checked definitely.

On the whole, the British military critics consider the communication issued a most cheerful one. They believe the German advance to the French coast has been checked and that the advances reached elsewhere show that the Germans have been compelled to weaken their center and left in order to strengthen their right.

Although the Germans have failed to break the allied line and have been compelled to give ground they now are in a better position, having a front which stretches from the Swiss frontier to Antwerp and Dutch territory, so that there are no flanks which the allies can turn.

The allies can attempt to break the line, however, and this is believed to be what they are trying to do on the Belgian frontier.

URGED TO AID RED CROSS

Mrs. Bryan Calls on Women to Help Relief Work.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Women prominent in official circles have been urged to co-operate with the Red Cross to relieve distress in Europe by Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, who advised the society that the movement gave every prospect of success.

Practically all of the recognized women's organizations throughout the country already have manifested an anxiety to help the relief work in some practical way.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN EUROPE.

In the northwest of Belgium the Germans have occupied Bruges, about fourteen miles east of Ostend, and have appeared at Blankenberge, on the North sea, some twelve miles northeast of Ostend.

The allies have thrown a strong line out to the south with the object of shutting off Calais and other French ports on the English channel. The allies occupy Ypres and their line is believed to extend almost directly northward to Nieuwpoort.

The latest French official statement announces gains on many points on the front, including the taking of Estaires.

Petrograd reports no change on the Eastern Prussian and central Vistula fronts, but claims a victory for a Russian column over the Austrians south of Przemyśl.

Vienna reports that according to an official German communication the Austro-German armies have relieved the fortress of Przemyśl.

GERMANS ARRIVE AT BRUGES AND DAMME

Also Appear Twelve Miles Northeast of Ostend.

London, Oct. 16.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent says: "The Amsterdam Telegraaf learns from its Sluis, Netherlands, correspondent that fighting has occurred in the vicinity of Bruges."

"After a brief battle near Ursel (ten miles southeast of Bruges) the correspondent says, the Germans opened the way to Bruges. They arrived at Bruges and Damme, four miles to the northeast of Bruges. They also have appeared at Blankenberge (on the North sea, nine miles northwest of Bruges and twelve miles northeast of Ostend)."

GERMANY IS MOVING TROOPS

Traffic on Main Railway Lines Suspended for Four Days.

London, Oct. 16.—Regular traffic on the main lines in Germany has been suspended for the last four days, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Daily News, to allow the transportation, as quickly as possible, of an army of 90,000 freshly trained men to the western front.

Special to The Dispatch:—

London, Oct. 16, 11:32 A. M.—The cruiser Hawke, utilized for scouting purposes off the German naval base in the North Sea, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine with a loss of about 500 officers and men. The disaster occurred Thursday at a point withheld by the Admiralty. The cruiser was steaming along when she was struck amidships by a torpedo and almost torn to pieces.

GERMANS NOW NEARING OSTEND

Special to The Dispatch:—

London, Oct. 16, 3:05 P. M.—The Germans have closed the gap between their right wing in France and the sea and are reported nearing Ostend. The German-Belgian line now extends south to its positions in France. Desperate fighting continues along the western wing of the opposing armies. Both sides claiming some advantages. On the eastern wing in France the French are nearing Metz, the German stronghold, and menace the communication of the Crown Prince's army. Important developments in this region are imminent.

YOUTH GIVES HIMSELF UP GAINS AT SEVERAL POINTS

Alleged to Have Shot His Father During Quarrel.

Kelsey, Minn., Oct. 16.—John McKay, prominent retired business man at Kelsey, was shot and instantly killed, allegedly by his son George, following an argument about putting on storm windows on the father's farm home, four miles from this village, while the mother, in poor health, kept inside.

Two shots were fired, both taking effect. The young man gave himself up and is in the custody of the sheriff. The elder McKay started to put on the windows. George came out and told him not to do it because of the illness of his mother, it is said. The father disagreed with him and an argument followed.

George ran to the road, stopped a farmer and told him that he had shot his father. Virginia deputies made the arrest. The elder McKay had been in business here for sixteen years.

BIG BATTLE IN POLAND

Fighting Is Not Yet Decisive.

ACTION ON IN GALICIA

Russians and Austrians Clash South of Przemyśl.

London, Oct. 16.—Of the big battle in Poland the Russian official report says there is no change to record. Rome is again responsible for the report that the Russians have defeated the Germans south of Warsaw, but this is believed to refer to the fighting in which the Russians claimed to have pressed the Germans back.

There has been more fighting south of Przemyśl, in Galicia, on the Stry-Sambor-Medyka line, which disposes of the report that Lemberg has been evacuated by the Russians and also throws doubt on another report that Przemyśl has been relieved.

The Austrians say they are attacking the Russians in this position, while the Russian report claims victory over the Austrians, from whom it says the Russians captured seven officers, 500 men and several machine guns.

In East Prussia, the Russians say there is no change in the situation. The Germans, according to Berlin newspapers, have reoccupied Lyck, and for military reasons have moved the civilians out of Goldap, which is the center of the region where the Russians are advancing from Suwalki.

The British cruiser Yarmouth has made an important capture in seizing the steamers Markomannia and Pontoporos, which had been acting as supply ships for the German cruiser Emden. The Emden has not been heard from since she sank a dozen British steamers in East Indian waters. The Markomannia, which was of the Hamburg-American line, was taken and sunk in the neighborhood of Sumatra. The Pontoporos, which is a Greek steamer, was taken to port.

The Australians also have helped cripple the German cruisers in the Pacific by the seizure of the German ship Comet, with a wireless station aboard, which was to keep in touch with them.

RUSSIANS DRIVE GERMANS

Petrograd Reports Invaders Have Been Pushed Back.

London, Oct. 16.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd says:

"Refugees who fled from Warsaw at the approach of the Germans are returning, the Russians having beaten back the German advance, chiefly through the excellent work of the artillery."

"Fighting now is in progress thirty miles from Warsaw. The town of Grodzisk, which was captured by the Germans, has been retaken by the Russians. The fighting a few days ago was within seven miles of Warsaw."

"The Germans are making excellent use of aeroplanes, which signal by means of long black streamers whenever they pass over Russian batteries. The fighting lines of the opposing forces extends 160 miles from north of Warsaw to a point due south of Przemyśl. Half of Galicia is occupied by the Russians."

CHAFE AT AUSTRIAN RULE

Slayer of Archduke Explains Why He Committed Crime.

Rome, Oct. 16.—Far from repenting the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, Gavrilo Princip declared he was proud of the deed, as it was not a crime, but the protest of the Slav nation against the despotic organization represented by the heir to the Austrian throne, according to details received here of the arraignment Tuesday at Sarajevo of the assassin, his wife and twenty-one other alleged accomplices.

It was not his object to kill a man, the youthful Princip is reported to have declared, but to show the world the desperation of the whole Slav population under Austrian domination.

BOERS GENERALLY REMAINING LOYAL

Are Flocking to the Standard of General Botha.

Cape Town, Oct. 16.—Commandants, field cornets and burghers who served under General Louis Botha, premier of the Union of South Africa, in the South African war, are rallying to his call, irrespective of their political feeling, to fight alongside the English in defense of the empire against which they were in arms twelve years ago. This fact has had a marked effect on waverers, who are flocking to General Botha's standard.

As a result of Colonel Maritz' rebellion in the northwest of the Cape provinces General Botha, who also is commander of the troops of the union, is taking the field earlier than he originally intended to. General Botha is placing himself at the head of several strong Dutch commandos, organized on the old burgher line, which are affiliated with regiments trained by the Union defense force.

Other rebels within the Union having openly declared themselves the government considers itself not obliged to deal gently with them out of consideration for certain Dutch persons who, even though they are not strong supporters of the government, are said to have drawn the line at rebellion.

The government also is adopting stern measures by arresting prominent men who are suspected of sowing sedition, charging them with high treason.

RHEIMS CATHEDRAL DAMAGED BY SHELL.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The Temps says that a shell fell in the Rheims cathedral Tuesday and destroyed the apse. Three other shells, according to the newspaper, demolished a part of the law court. The public attorney was buried in the ruins of the court building. He was extricated alive.

William Skinner and Morton F. Plank Resign.

New York, Oct. 16.—Two more directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company—William Skinner and Morton F. Plank—resigned at a meeting of the board of directors here.

As the annual meeting of the stockholders will be held Oct. 23 the vacancies were not filled.

DEPOT AND CARS BURN AT NACO

Shell Does Some Damage in Mexican Town.

MEJAGE TO AMERICAN CITY

Stench From Corpses of Unburied Mexicans and Dead Horses Near International Boundary Threatens to Cause an Outbreak of Disease—Two Militia Officers Arrive as Representatives of Arizona Governor.

Naco, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Fifteen of General Hill's loyal Carranzista troops defending Naco, Sonora, were killed by Governor Maytorena's attacking Yaqui Indians. Hill also lost a machine gun. Maytorena is reported to have received reinforcements and his adherents said he might make another assault.

The Southern Pacific depot on the Mexican side and a string of freight cars burned, the result of a well aimed shell from the Maytorena artillerymen.

The stench from the corpses of several unburied Mexicans and from some dead horses near the international boundary now has become a menace to the American town.

Investigation shows General Hill has received more than 1,000,000 cartridges, several machine guns and several hundred rifles through Naco, Ariz., since he took up his position in the town across the line.

General Charles W. Harris, adjutant general of the Arizona national guard, with Captain M. G. Seeley, are here as representatives of Governor Hunt.

DEMOCRATS ENTER DENIAL

Say Carnegie and Hill Have Not Financed Campaign.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Emphatic denial was made by officers of the Democratic national and congressional committees that either James J. Hill or Andrew Carnegie had financed the Democratic campaign as charged in a statement made public by Representative Woods of Iowa, chairman of the Republican congressional committee.

"Neither Mr. Carnegie nor Mr. Hill has contributed a penny to the Democratic congressional committee," said Chairman Doremus. "A like disclaimer that Mr. Carnegie or Mr. Hill has contributed to the war chest of the Democratic national committee was made in behalf of that committee by Thomas J. Pence, who is in charge of the Washington headquarters."

PASSES COAL LAND BILL

Washington, Oct. 16. Given up as dead legislation less than a week ago the Alaska coal land leasing bill, revived at the instance of President Wilson and Secretary Lane as part of the administration's program of this session, awaits only the president's signature to become a law.

It went through its final ordeal in the house virtually without opposition. The bill is designed to throw open to a system of leases under competitive bidding the immediate coal resources of Alaska, tied up in the last eight years, and pending claims will be adjudicated within a year.

VOTING MACHINES BARRED

PASSES COAL LAND BILL

House Sends Alaskan Measure to President Wilson.

Washington, Oct. 16. Given up as dead legislation less than a week ago the Alaska coal land leasing bill, revived at the instance of President Wilson and Secretary Lane as part of the administration's program of this session, awaits only the president's signature to become a law.

It went through its final ordeal in the house virtually without opposition.

The bill is designed to throw open to a system of leases under competitive bidding the immediate coal resources of Alaska, tied up in the last eight years, and pending claims will be adjudicated within a year.

VOTING MACHINES BARRED

Milwaukee Ballots Will Be Cast in Old Fashioned Way.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 16.—Voting machines cannot be used in Milwaukee at the general election Nov. 3.

The supreme court, after listening to arguments, issued an oral opinion forbidding the use of the voting machines and making the alternative writ of mandamus asked for by Alvin Kletzsch, Milwaukee, permanent.

Objection was made to the use of the machines in that second choice votes could not be recorded properly.

Lone Robber Gets $2,000.

Kensett, Ark., Oct. 16.—An unidentified man held up the cashier of the Bank of Kensett, obtained $2,000 and escaped on horseback. Poses immediately started in pursuit.

George West returned last night from McGregor, Iowa, where he visited his father. Mr. West says it rained continuously while he was there. He mentioned the hunting accident of a neighbor in McGregor. The latter was holding a shot gun by the barrel, the butt resting on the ground and had just turned his head to talk to a friend when a small boy touched the trigger and the shot narrowly missed blowing off the McGregor man's head. As it was, he got four shot in his right ear, some in his neck and lost the finger which happened to be resting on the mouth of the barrel. At La Crosse, Wis., says Mr. West, he visited the Eagle lodge of over 600 members and was shown every possible courtesy. They have a fine club house. At St. Paul he visited Carling's cafe. The kitchen was a wonderful place equipped with all possible conveniences. Streets in the business section are being widened in St. Paul contributing much to the appearance of the city.

PIKE'S PEAK BABY LAND

Thousands of Babies Carried There During Summer Months by Their Anxious Mothers

REGION VAST BABY HOSPITAL

They Grow in Good Humor as They Grow Healthy and Fat—Has Been Great Year for Twins

(Colorado Springs, Oct. 16.—The Pike's Peak region this year is a veritable land of babies. They are here by the thousands with their fond and anxious mothers from all over that great heart-ridden region known as the Middle West.

Baby carts may be counted by the score on the streets of Colorado Springs and Manitou at almost any hour of the day. On their arrival the babies are thin and pale, a majority of them, and look as though another ten days in the heat would have robbed them of their remaining meager vitality. Some are carried in bundles and in the arms of mothers. Others recline in heavily quilted carriages and carts that push. Others have to be met at the station by ambulances and taken to the hospitals.

A week here and the color of the cheeks returns. The rare mountain air, the chill of the altitude and the waters of melting snows drive from the system the "cause" of the summer complaints and put new life into the organs of vitality. Little medicine is necessary, and doctors here seldom make more than a call or two on imported infants.

The Pike's Peak region has become a vast baby hospital. Ten years ago the visitor to Colorado met on the streets and in the mountain trails thin men and women with that flush of pink in the cheek that eternally advertised their malady. Their numbers appear to have become fewer and their places have been taken by babies.

"There's one medicine that can almost absolutely be depended upon to cure your baby," an eminent Texas physician told a mother who recently came here. "You will find it in the atmosphere of the mountains a mile or so above the sea level."

It is estimated that by November 1 there will depart from the region more than 5,000 pink-cheeked babies with all their organs fully developed and sound and in excellent condition for the fine growing season of the fall and winter.

Baby shows are frequent here though not many of them are known by that or any other name. They are involuntary affairs sometimes. Half a score of mothers with their babies may be waiting on the corner for a street car that will take them to the parks of the canyons and before the car arrives the chances are an interesting exhibition of babies with silent mental comparisons being rapidly carried on, will attract the attention of others waiting for the same car.

Frequently there is a meeting of this kind in the park. There are babies here from Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Little Rock and other places in the Middle West.

The season's offering has been prolific of twins. An old resident says he never before has seen such a profusion of "pairs" as is exhibited on the streets of Colorado Springs this summer. A fat set of twins, girl babies of about 15 months, met a lean set of about the same age the other day. The fat ones had had the tonic of the mountains administered, and the lean ones were nearly out of the convalescent stage.

Hardware dealers have discovered extraordinary demands for the little bolts and nut screws that enter into the mechanism of baby carts and carriages. The mountain climbs and canyon road jerks the "screws loose" and each setting sun witnesses the return of many vehicles for the transportation of infants ready for the man in the repair shop.

Here is the typical mountain canyon cart and its accoutrements: Baby pillows are fastened to the back of the seat and one side, and on the other side is a receptacle that holds a bottle of milk, a nursing bottle, a few extra safety pins, a few pieces of toast and other accessories to meet the demands of the baby; over the back of the seat is spread a little sweater, jacket or coat, and in front is a makeshift footpiece over which the baby's legs may be stretched while it takes a nap as the travel proceeds.

Attached is an umbrella that serves as a roof for the cart-cottage during the little showers that usually fall in the mountains during the afternoons, while underneath is the kodak that will give birth to pictures galore of the mountain stream or standing on a bridge that spans the streams or crawling in the grass of the canyon or mounted upon a miniature boulder around which the white foam plays.

The average baby with the rose in his cheeks goes out early in the afternoon and returns just in time for the 6:30 dinner. Meantime he has been fed all that he requires, has taken the sleep the region demands, and has four to six hours of fresh air and sunshine. There are fewer crying babies here than anywhere else in the country. They grow in good humor as they grow healthy and fat.

No, this is no "press agent" story.

Surprise Party

A surprise party was given Miss Elizabeth Kinsmiller at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kinsmiller, on Thursday evening. She leaves Monday for Winnipeg, Canada, in company with her sister, Mrs. A. W. Smith. Sixty-two guests were present. A delightful luncheon was served.

Supper and Sale

A supper and sale will be given on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, November 17 and 18, by the ladies of the Bethlehem Lutheran church on Seventh street.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

"The Law of the Lumberjack" tonight and Saturday in which Bill Jones, foreman, admires Mary, sister of Marshall Clark, the head cutter of the logging camp, and the logging camp foreman also admires her. As a consequence Jones and Jackson are bitter enemies. Her brother favors Jones' suit and Jackson knowing this takes advantage of his position to place Marshall in the most dangerous position when felling the giant redwood trees and he is seriously injured. Jackson realizes that he is directly responsible and has the injured man taken from the logging camp to the mill doctor accompanying him on the dangerous trip over the flume. This flume carries the lumber 65 miles through the mountains at a rate of a mile a minute, and a ride over this flume would be attempted by no man other than one with nerves of steel. Jones promptly recognizes his enemy's calibre and character through this trip upon which Jackson ventures over the flume. Upon learning, however, that Jackson is responsible for the injuries sustained by Clark, he accuses him of the deed. Jackson resents the accusation. The two giants engage in a terrific fist fight. Jackson is completely knocked out by Jones.

May is notified of the fight going on and appeals to Dr. Wm. Clifford who is attending her brother to accompany her and separate the combatants. Clifford consents but is painfully thrashed in the end by Jones. May has him taken to her house. Later Jones finds out May loves Clifford and also that Clifford intends to return to the city. Here the Law of the Lumberjack comes into play. He will not allow Dr. Clifford to return to the city without any intention of coming back to the girl with whose affections he has trifled. This is a very strong feature with a wonderful moral. A dollar bill tonight for 10c.

At the Columbia

There is good entertainment in many kinds of pictures, but a really good comedy has a delightful touch all its own. "Too Much Uncle" as presented last night at the Columbia was one of the most finished and complete farces we have ever had the pleasure of witnessing. There is no denying the fact that a large house greatly adds to the general appeal of a picture but a small house would have soon lost itself and enjoyed this comedy to the very end. Ralph Ince who takes a leading role and who directed the entire production gives one the very latest technique of the phantasmic arts. His skillful handling of scenes are everywhere to be seen. Every member of the company have parts admirably suited to their particular line of work.

Mary Pickford, this week in our opinion appears in the best one reel play ever shown at the Columbia. "The Mender of Nets" is an excellent play and worthy of a prominent place upon any program.

The Hearst-Selig News film this week is up to the usual standard and is rich with interesting news of all kinds.

As previously announced on Saturday Bushman, the idol of 5,000,000 women of the United States alone will present a great 2 reel drama touching upon life among the Royal Families of Europe. Essanay's famous stock company have endeavored in this play to present a 2 reel drama that will prove of timely interest. The management also wish everyone to watch their ad for tomorrow. ## DUTY OF REPUBLICANS

The Wadena Pioneer-Journal, one of the staunch Eberhart supporters and whose editor, W. E. Verity, is as well posted on political matters as any man in the state, comes out squarely for the election of Wm. E. Lee for governor. While Mr. Lee was not the first choice of the Wadena newspaper man he realizes that the republican party has placed him in nomination, that he will make an acceptable and able governor for the state and that as between Lee and Hammond there is so much in favor of the former that he publishes the following statement:

The Pioneer Journal believes that William E. Lee should be chosen as governor of Minnesota this fall, and that it is the duty of republicans to stand by him as opposed to W. S. Hammond, the democratic candidate. This belief is founded upon several things.

Mr. Lee is a man who is thoroughly well qualified and equipped to make an ideal executive officer of the state. He has had training in state affairs which would make his services of great value and he is a successful man of affairs. We believe that a man who makes a success of his own business is more likely to prove a success in managing the affairs of the state.

Mr. Lee is a republican, and as such should receive the support of republicans. It is true that many true blue republicans do not agree with this statement, yet it is true, just the same. Mr. Lee, in common with many others, was in a quandary two years since, but his life long record has been in the ranks of the republican party, and that fact should not be forgotten. He states now that he will do all in his power to bring the party factions together again in case he is elected.

Those two reasons seem sufficient for us to base support for Mr. Lee. If he is a fit man and if, in the main, his politics and ours agree, we must stand by him as opposed to a man who openly represents a party whose principles are diametrically opposed to our own views.

Politically speaking, the Pioneer Journal knows many men whom it would prefer as a candidate for governor, but Mr. Lee and Mr. Hammond are the ones to choose between, and we unhesitatingly say Lee.

The Pioneer Journal differs from the views held by Mr. Lee in some important matters and regrets that the differences exist, yet it differs in larger degree with the views expressed by Mr. Hammond, the democratic nominee.

It is to be hoped that republicans will get together and give their hearty support to Lee, inasmuch as there is ground to believe that he will prove of future benefit to the party.

And in this connection it is pertinent to say that the Pioneer Journal has no sympathy with the wishy-washy, namby pamby talk of non-partisanship which is fostered by a few democrats, with axes to grind, and a few semi-feminine so-called reformers who think they have gotten hold of something "real cute" in the line of a popular issue when they lip their half baked thoughts to the effect that the man should be considered as above the party. The sooner the sensible voters of the country get away from such fallacies the better for the country. We might keep along our present path and ultimately bring about the abolition of parties, but if chaos does not ensue, we make a poor guess. Principles should be placed above personality in campaigns and parties should enunciate the principles. In that manner only can we vote on public issues with any degree of intelligence.

If each candidate before the people is to launch a platform of his own, and if each candidate's platform differs from others, we secure a set of lawmakers who have nothing in common and therefore unable to accomplish anything of value to the community.

Holding to these views, as it does, therefore, the Pioneer Journal will do what it can for the candidacy of William E. Lee, the Republican nominee.

PERSONAL PROPERTY

For nearly two weeks the state tax commission has been wrestling with the personal property assessment returns as made by the various county boards of assessment and the task approaches the Herculean. How to make up a deficit of nearly $13,000,000 which is the difference between the returns this year and the assessment agreed to by the board a year ago is the chief difficulty and a settlement of the same may call for an arbitrary increase in more than half of the counties of the state.

The returns as made by the various counties show a decided falling off in more than half of the items in the four classes of personal property listed. This year returns are made on the basis of 25, 33 1-3, 40 and 50 per cent of the valuation, the first named figure covering household property and this in a measure may be responsible, but in the minus of the tax commission, it hardly covers the big discrepancy between last year's assessment as made by the commission and this year's returns.

In 1913 the total assessed value for all personal property in the state as fixed upon by the tax commission was $234,546,508. This year the returns as made by the 86 counties of the state only totals $222,171,894. In addition, while nearly 334,000 individual assessments were reported last year, only 320,953 are listed this time.

One of the interesting things connected with the returns made by the various counties is the number of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and other articles of assessable value which are listed. Nearly all show an increase, but the assessment figures are not in keeping with the increase. That the number of horses in the state have not suffered by the encroachment of the automobile is more than evident. Another surprise is the number of automobiles. The figure is several thousand short of the number registered in the office of the secretary of state.

A MILLION PAIR OF SOCKS

Dealer Could Have Cleared $100,000 if He Could Have Filled a War Order for Goods

Think of an order for a million pairs of socks. This was brought out recently by the statement that Russia had ordered 180 special automobiles at a cost of $750,000, and France an enormous order for barbed wire. The sock story was told by a New York dealer who declared that if he had known three months since what he knows now, he would have cleared $100,000 in that one sale. According to his story, a representative of the Russian government, whose name cannot be disclosed, was ready to place an order for 1,000,000 pairs of socks to be sixty per cent wool. The delivery had to be made at once on board a steamer to sail the next day. The full amount of the order would be paid at the dock in cash. Quick inquiries revealed just eight pair of socks of the required grade on hand at the warehouse and the mills, and the order was lost. It was filled in time, however, from the stock of a great dry-goods concern which recently failed, and the steamer left on time with great quantities of winter clothing. This, of course, was before the war was declared.

THE ST. CLOUD REFORMATORY

Board of Control Discusses Its Management and Government in Bulletin Just Issued

Minnesota's one correctional institution for first offenders in felony only is the state reformatory located at St. Cloud. Sentences to this institution are entirely on the indeterminate plan, with the age limits ranging from sixteen to thirty years. The only fixed terms are those in the case of federal prisoners and boys transferred from the state training school at Red Wing who are under the jurisdiction of the reformatory officers until they attain their majority.

The reformatory, which is under the direct charge of the state board of control, was established in 1889, and during its existence has housed nearly 5,000 persons. Its present population is about 525. Six Indians are included in the registrations.

The work of the institution is conducted along correctional and reformatory lines, and in consequence there is a constant movement of prisoners. Here the parole system has full swing and through its application a large number of prisoners are released yearly.

In granting paroles only those cases meeting certain requirements are considered, and during their pendency a constant watch of those paroled is maintained by the board's agents. Assured employment is the first requisite to a parole, and sobriety and good conduct are imperative. Regular reports are required. On August 1st, 1912, 138 men were out on parole, and in the year which followed additions were made to the number of 109. On August 1st, 1913 the number of men on parole was 125 to which was added 95 during the following year.

Naturally there were some violations of the paroles granted, but they were few as compared with the number issued. Most of the violators were returned to the reformatory and are now serving out their terms.

While this institution is not self-sustaining to the same extent as the state prison at Stillwater, the inmates do considerable toward their maintenance and in keeping down the expenses of the institution. Located on the extensive grounds is one of the finest granite quarries in the state. From the quarry has been taken practically all of the stone used in the construction of the reformatory buildings, and the quarrying, cutting and placing of the same has been done entirely by the inmates. In addition there is an extensive stone crushing plant, the product of which enters extensively into state road experimental work, the material being furnished free to the state highway commission.

During the two years ending with August last the reformatory plant crushed nearly 15,000 cubic yards. Of this the state highway commission used nearly 11,000 yards in road work. Had the product of this crusher been sold on the market at the low price of say $1.40 a cubic yard, it would have realized the institution over $18,000. The cost to the state for the crushing of this rock, which includes officers' salaries, prisoners' wages, machine repairs and maintenance of the men employed, was $22,339.35.

A new crusher of added capacity has just been installed, which will of course furnish a much larger amount of road material, but will of necessity add considerably to the operating expenses. This added cost and the increased expense in delivering the product of the crusher to the state highway commission the board will bring to the attention of the coming legislature. In the matter of cut stone the total value of the product for the past two years is $65,544.48. Practically all of this stone was used in construction work on the reformatory grounds.

Another line of employment is that of garment making. In the factory attached to the institution is made all the clothing used in the reformatory besides clothing for several other state institutions in charge of the board. Book credits for this industry shows $13,515.63 for the reformatory alone. In addition clothing valued at nearly $25,000 has been sold to the other state institutions.

Besides the two industries named there is an extensive farm, a cabinet shop and a blacksmith shop. All three contribute to the maintenance of the institution.

Besides medical care all inmates of the reformatory now have the benefit of a dental department with a salaried operative, and last year dental work was done at a cost to the state for material used of $520. The cost outside of the institution would have been in excess of $5,000.

Commencing upon the work of his department, the reformatory dentist urges either the gratuitous distribution by the state of tooth brushes to the inmates, or that they be permitted to buy them on entering the institution.

There has been only one death at the reformatory in two years, which speaks well for the sanitary surroundings of the inmates.

BUY UP THE COTTON CROP

Movement to "Buy a Bale of Cotton" Has Gained Considerable Momentum all Over Country

The Fergus Falls Journal says: The southern states are in a woe of plights as a result of the war. They have raised an unusually large cotton crop, but cotton is largely exported for manufacture and with trade everywhere disorganized, the price has suddenly been cut in two. The cotton raising industry is largely a credit affair, the land being leased in small tracts to negroes who raise the cotton on shares, the owner furnishing the seed and guaranteeing them credit for living expenses at the local stores until the crop is harvested and sold. At the prices now prevailing the crop will not bring in enough to take care of the debts already contracted for the past year's supplies, and if the whole crop is thrown on the market, it is feared that prices will be still further depressed. Congress has been bombarded with demands for assistance, and some of the southern congressmen have been endeavoring to carry favor with their constituents by proposing various schemes for draining the national treasury for the benefit of the planters. Another movement that has been undertaken throughout the south is the "buy a bale of cotton movement." Everyone who can afford to do so is requested to buy a bale of cotton, at 10c per pound, which is half way between the present market price and the price the planters hoped to receive. The movement has gained considerable momentum, but it will take a long time to buy the entire crop.

Giving Father Away.

A young minister preached one Sunday to a rural congregation and spent the next day visiting the people.

At one house the man of the house was expressing his appreciation of the sermon in complimentary terms while assisting the minister to put up his team. His little son had followed him and after giving the minister a minute or two exclaimed:

"Why, papa, you said he was a one boss preacher, and he's got two hosses!"—Exchange.

CAPTURE OVER 500 GUNS

Germans Report Securing Large Supplies at Antwerp.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The following official report was received from army headquarters:

"Four thousand prisoners were taken at Antwerp and more than 500 guns. An inspection shows that a large quantity of stores was left behind by the Belgians.

"A new attack by the Russians in the direction of East Prussia has been repulsed and an advance of Russians, consisting of about eight army corps, between Warsaw and Ivango-rod has been successfully met with heavy losses to the Russians."

Advice and a Mule.

"Givin' some men advice," said Uncle Eben, "reminds me of tryin' to discipline my ol' mule wif a fence rail. It tirs out de giver and hurts de receiver, but don't make no real difference."—Washington Star.

There is more catarrh in the section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it incurable, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: P. J. ## NATIONAL ASPECT OF NEW YORK RACE

Contest For Governor of Empire State Interests Nation.

NO POLITICAL IMPORTANCE

Result Will Not Indicate Strength of the Two Parties and Neither Candidate Believed to Have Chance For Presidential Nomination—To Forecast Progressive Strength.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 16.—[Special.]—New York, as usual, has become the most interesting state politically. No matter what may be the issue nor who are the candidates, in every election New York is the center of political interest. It is the same in an off year as in a presidential election. In some way New York is always able to take the center of the political stage.

Now, as a matter of fact, what real interest have the people of the country outside of New York in whether Charles Whitman or Martin Glynn is elected governor of the Empire State? There is no answer. And yet there has been more discussion of this subject among politicians than as to whether or not a working majority for the Democrats shall be returned to the house of representatives.

Not a Presidential Star.

If the election in New York this year were an indication of the next election, if the candidates were presidential possibilities, the interest which has been manifested might be explained. But that is not the case. If Whitman should win there might be talk about him for the Republican nomination, but the Republican nomination in 1916 is not of the same importance that it might be under more favorable conditions. The re-election of Governor Glynn will not place him any nearer the presidency than a defeat, for the nomination of the Democratic candidate in 1916 is already made, political wise men believe.

One Possible Important Feature.

It will not do to overlook one possible important feature. The vote for the Progressive candidate should be a test of the strength of that party. It should be a better barometer than the vote in any other state. Even if we agree that Colonel Roosevelt is stronger than the Progressive party it is not to be acknowledged that Davenport is the colonel's candidate, hand picked, and that the colonel is giving to him all the effort which he would give to himself. Progressive strength will be measured by the vote cast in New York for the head of the ticket.

Doubtful Economy.

It is very doubtful whether it is good economy to shut down on public works in hard times. The government does not really suffer the pinches of poverty, but the families of men who are thrown out of employment by reason of shutting down of public works know what it means. One of the strong arguments in favor of continuing river and harbor works and public buildings is because many workmen and common laborers will have employment.

Champ Not Color Blind.

Progressive Leader Murdock sought and obtained recognition to move a suspension of the rules to pass a bill. Then Fitzgerald woke up and asked, "How did you catch the speaker's eye and get recognition?"

"I was near the center aisle and agitated myself sufficiently to catch his eye. It was merely a matter of agitation," was Murdock's reply.

"One redheaded man should not ask another redheaded man such a question," observed Jim Mann. "They are conspicuous."

"This is a live demonstration that when the gentleman from Kansas has a meritorious bill he can catch the speaker's eye," said Fitzgerald, as an argument to prove that Murdock's contentions about the house management were unfounded.

"Or that the speaker is not color blind," put in John Garner of Texas.

Almost a Hoarse Hoot.

It is doubtful whether a member of the house makes very much in rising to a question of personal privilege and reading a newspaper article, particularly if that article is full of ridicule and pokes fun at him. Under such circumstances his political opponents, if not his partisans, are apt to give the complaining member the laugh, and that does not add very much to the dignity of his personal denunciation of the newspaper that has been abusing him. And yet the personal explanation route is the only way by which some members are able to reply to newspaper attacks.

Was a Chicago Tenderfoot.

Congressman Thompson of Chicago made a good speech on the subject of conservation, and on taking the floor remarked that up to the time he had a place on the committee on public lands he knew little about the west. "I was much of a tenderfoot," he said. "I have found, however, that these problems of the western states also affect the interests of the whole country. The great resources of the country are neither local nor sectional." And he went on to show that he had made a study of the land questions.

PRZEMYSL MAY SOON FALL

Russian Bombardment Said to Be Very Effective.

London, Oct. 16.—An observer from the army besieging Przemyśl, according to a Petrograd dispatch to the Havas agency via Paris, has returned to the Russian capital and reports that the Russians have bombarded the fortress unceasingly day and night and the garrison has been destroyed. Wednesday 3,000 Austrians attempted a sortie. The Russians allowed them to approach close to the Russian lines and then annihilated them with rapid fire.

The surrender of Przemyśl, says the observer, is only a question of days.

WILSON FOR BUDGET PLAN

President Says Appropriations Next Year Must Be Smaller.

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson reiterated his determination that government appropriations next year shall be less than those of this year and that strict economy be observed in all departments.

President Wilson is hopeful of the establishment soon of a budget system under which the finances of the government can be handled in a more businesslike way.

He states now that he will do all in his power to bring the party factions together again in case he is elected.

These two reasons seem sufficient for us to base support for Mr. Lee. If he is a fit man and if, in the main, his policies and ours agree, we must stand by him as opposed to a man who openly represents a party whose principles are diametrically opposed to our own views.

Politically speaking, the Pioneer Journal knows many men whom it would prefer as a candidate for governor, but Mr. Lee and Mr. Hammond are the ones to choose between, and we unhesitatingly say Lee.

The Pioneer Journal differs from the views held by Mr. Lee in some important matters and regrets that the differences exist, yet it differs in larger degree with the views expressed by Mr. Hammond, the democratic nominee.

It is to be hoped that republicans will get together and give their hearty support to Lee, inasmuch as there is ground to believe that he will prove of future benefit to the party.

And in this connection it is pertinent to say that the Pioneer Journal has no sympathy with the wishy-washy, namby pamby talk of non-partisanship which is fostered by a few democrats, with axes to grind, and a few semi-feminine so-called reformers who think they have gotten hold of something "real cute" in the line of a popular issue when they lip their half baked thoughts to the effect that the man should be considered as above the party. The sooner the sensible voters of the country get away from such fallacies the better for the country. We might keep along our present path and ultimately bring about the abolition of parties, but if chaos does not ensue, we make a poor guess. Principles should be placed above personality in campaigns and parties should enunciate the principles. In that manner only can we vote on public issues with any degree of intelligence.

If each candidate before the people is to launch a platform of his own, and if each candidate's platform differs from others, we secure a set of lawmakers who have nothing in common and therefore unable to accomplish anything of value to the community.

Holding to these views, as it does, therefore, the Pioneer Journal will do what it can for the candidacy of William E. Lee, the Republican nominee.

PERSONAL PROPERTY

For nearly two weeks the state tax commission has been wrestling with the personal property assessment returns as made by the various county boards of assessment and the task approaches the Herculean. How to make up a deficit of nearly $13,000,000 which is the difference between the returns this year and the assessment agreed to by the board a year ago is the chief difficulty and a settlement of the same may call for an arbitrary increase in more than half of the counties of the state.

The returns as made by the various counties show a decided falling off in more than half of the items in the four classes of personal property listed. This year returns are made on the basis of 25, 33 1-3, 40 and 50 per cent of the valuation, the first named figure covering household property and this in a measure may be responsible, but in the minus of the tax commission, it hardly covers the big discrepancy between last year's assessment as made by the commission and this year's returns.

In 1913 the total assessed value for all personal property in the state as fixed upon by the tax commission was $234,546,508. This year the returns as made by the 86 counties of the state only totals $222,171,894. In addition, while nearly 334,000 individual assessments were reported last year, only 320,953 are listed this time.

One of the interesting things connected with the returns made by the various counties is the number of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and other articles of assessable value which are listed. Nearly all show an increase, but the assessment figures are not in keeping with the increase. That the number of horses in the state have not suffered by the encroachment of the automobile is more than evident. Another surprise is the number of automobiles. The figure is several thousand short of the number registered in the office of the secretary of state.

A MILLION PAIR OF SOCKS

Dealer Could Have Cleared $100,000 if He Could Have Filled a War Order for Goods

Think of an order for a million pairs of socks. This was brought out recently by the statement that Russia had ordered 180 special automobiles at a cost of $750,000, and France an enormous order for barbed wire. The sock story was told by a New York dealer who declared that if he had known three months since what he knows now, he would have cleared $100,000 in that one sale. According to his story, a representative of the Russian government, whose name cannot be disclosed, was ready to place an order for 1,000,000 pairs of socks to be sixty per cent wool. The delivery had to be made at once on board a steamer to sail the next day. The full amount of the order would be paid at the dock in cash. Quick inquiries revealed just eight pair of socks of the required grade on hand at the warehouse and the mills, and the order was lost. It was filled in time, however, from the stock of a great dry-goods concern which recently failed, and the steamer left on time with great quantities of winter clothing. This, of course, was before the war was declared.

THE ST. CLOUD REFORMATORY

Board of Control Discusses Its Management and Government in Bulletin Just Issued

Minnesota's one correctional institution for first offenders in felony only is the state reformatory located at St. Cloud. Sentences to this institution are entirely on the indeterminate plan, with the age limits ranging from sixteen to thirty years. The only fixed terms are those in the case of federal prisoners and boys transferred from the state training school at Red Wing who are under the jurisdiction of the reformatory officers until they attain their majority.

The reformatory, which is under the direct charge of the state board of control, was established in 1889, and during its existence has housed nearly 5,000 persons. Its present population is about 525. Six Indians are included in the registrations.

The work of the institution is conducted along correctional and reformatory lines, and in consequence there is a constant movement of prisoners. Here the parole system has full swing and through its application a large number of prisoners are released yearly.

In granting paroles only those cases meeting certain requirements are considered, and during their pendency a constant watch of those paroled is maintained by the board's agents. Assured employment is the first requisite to a parole, and sobriety and good conduct are imperative. Regular reports are required. On August 1st, 1912, 138 men were out on parole, and in the year which followed additions were made to the number of 199. On August 1st, 1913 the number of men on parole was 125 to which was added 95 during the following year.

Naturally there were some violations of the paroles granted, but they were few as compared with the number issued. Most of the violators were returned to the reformatory and are now serving out their terms. While this institution is not self-sustaining to the same extent as the state prison at Stillwater, the inmates do considerable toward their maintenance and in keeping down the expenses of the institution. Located on the extensive grounds is one of the finest granite quarries in the state. From the quarry has been taken practically all of the stone used in the construction of the reformatory buildings, and the quarrying, cutting and placing of the same has been done entirely by the inmates. In addition there is an extensive stone crushing plant, the product of which enters extensively into state road experimental work, the material being furnished free to the state highway commission.

During the two years ending with August last the reformatory plant crushed nearly 15,000 cubic yards. Of this the state highway commission used nearly 11,000 yards in road work. Had the product of this crusher been sold on the market at the low price of say $1.40 a cubic yard, it would have realized the institution over $18,000. The cost to the state for the crushing of this rock, which includes officers' salaries, prisoners wages, machine repairs and maintenance of the men employed, was $22,389.35.

A new crusher of added capacity has just been installed, which will of course furnish a much larger amount of road material, but will of necessity add considerably to the operating expenses. This added cost and the increased expense in delivering the product of the crusher to the state highway commission the board will bring to the attention of the coming legislature. In the matter of cost the total value of the product for the past two years is $65,544.48. Practically all of this stone was used in construction work on the reformatory grounds.

Another line of employment is that of garment making. In the factory attached to the institution is made all the clothing used in the reformatory besides clothing for several other state institutions in charge of the board. Book credits for this industry shows $13,515.63 for the reformatory alone. In addition clothing valued at nearly $25,000 has been sold to the other state institutions.

Besides the two industries named there is an extensive farm, a cabinet shop and a blacksmith shop. All three contribute to the maintenance of the institution.

Besides medical care all inmates of the reformatory now have the benefit of a dental department with a salaried operative, and last year dental work was done at a cost to the state for material used of $520. The cost outside of the institution would have been in excess of $5,000.

Commencing upon the work of his department, the reformatory dentist urges either the gratuitous distribution by the state of tooth brushes to the inmates, or that they be permitted to buy them on entering the institution.

There has been only one death at the reformatory in two years, which speaks well for the sanitary surroundings of the inmates.

BUY UP THE COTTON CROP

Movement to "Buy a Bale of Cotton" Has Gained Considerable Momentum all Over Country

The Fergus Falls Journal says: The southern states are in a woe of plight as a result of the war. They have raised an unusually large cotton crop, but cotton is largely exported for manufacture and with trade everywhere disorganized, the price has suddenly been cut in two. The cotton raising industry is largely a credit affair, the land being leased in small tracts to negroes who raise the cotton on shares, the owner furnishing the seed and guaranteeing them credit for living expenses at the local stores until the crop is harvested and sold. At the prices now prevailing the crop will not bring in enough to take care of the debts already contracted for the past year's supplies, and if the whole crop is thrown on the market, it is feared that prices will be still further depressed. Congress has been bombarded with demands for assistance, and some of the southern congressmen have been endeavoring to carry favor with their constituents by proposing various schemes for draining the national treasury for the benefit of the planters. Another movement that has been undertaken throughout the south is the "buy a bale of cotton movement." Everyone who can afford to do so is requested to buy a bale of cotton, at 10c per pound, which is half way between the present market price and the price the planters hoped to receive. The movement has gained considerable momentum, but it will take a long time to buy the entire crop.

NATIONAL ASPECT OF NEW YORK RACE

Contest For Governor of Empire State Interests Nation.

NO POLITICAL IMPORTANCE

Result Will Not Indicate Strength of the Two Parties and Neither Candidate Believed to Have Chance For Presidential Nomination—To Forecast Progressive Strength.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN. Washington, Oct. 16.—[Special.]—New York, as usual, has become the most interesting state politically. No matter what may be the issue nor who are the candidates, in every election New York is the center of political interest. It is the same in an off year as in a presidential election. In some way New York is always able to take the center of the political stage.

Now, as a matter of fact, what real interest have the people of the country outside of New York in whether Charles Whitman or Martin Glynn is elected governor of the Empire State? There is no answer. And yet there has been more discussion of this subject among politicians than as to whether or not a working majority for the Democrats shall be returned to the house of representatives.

Not a Presidential Straw.

If the election in New York this year were an indication of the next election, if the candidates were presidential possibilities, the interest which has been manifested might be explained. But that is not the case. If Whitman should win there might be talk about him for the Republican nomination, but the Republican nomination in 1916 is not of the same importance that it might be under more favorable conditions. The re-election of Governor Glynn will not place him any nearer the presidency than a defeat, for the nomination of the Democratic candidate in 1916 is already made, political wise men believe.

One Possible Important Feature. It will not do to overlook one possible important feature. The vote for the Progressive candidate should be a test of the strength of that party. It should be a better barometer than the vote in any other state. Even if we agree that Colonel Roosevelt is stronger than the Progressive party it also must be acknowledged that Davenport is the colonel's candidate, hand picked, and that the colonel is giving to him all the effort which he would give to himself. Progressive strength will be measured by the vote cast in New York for the head of the ticket.

Doubtful Economy. It is very doubtful whether it is good economy to shut down on public works in hard times. The government does not really suffer the pinches of poverty, but the families of men who are thrown out of employment by reason of shutting down of public works know what it means. One of the strong arguments in favor of continuing river and harbor works and public buildings is because many workmen and common laborers will have employment.

Champ Not Color Blind.

Progressive Leader Murdock sought and obtained recognition to move a suspension of the rules to pass a bill. Then Fitzgerald woke up and asked, "How did you catch the speaker's eye and get recognition?"

"I was near the center aisle and agitated myself sufficiently to catch his eye. It was merely a matter of agitation," was Murdock's reply.

"One redheaded man should not ask another redheaded man such a question," observed Jim Mann. "They are conspicuous."

"This is a live demonstration that when the gentleman from Kansas has a meritorious bill he can catch the speaker's eye," said Fitzgerald, as an argument to prove that Murdock's contentions about the house management were unfounded.

"Or that the speaker is not color blind," put in John Garner of Texas.

Almost a Hoarse Foot.

It is doubtful whether a member of the house makes very much in rising to a question of personal privilege and reading a newspaper article, particularly if that article is full of ridicule and pokes fun at him. Under such circumstances his political opponents, if not his partisans, are apt to give the complaining member the laugh, and that does not add very much to the dignity of his personal denunciation of the newspaper that has been abusing him. And yet the personal explanation route is the only way by which some members are able to reply to newspaper attacks.

Was a Chicago Tenderfoot.

Congressman Thompson of Chicago made a good speech on the subject of conservation, and on taking the floor remarked that up to the time he had a place on the committee on public lands he knew little about the west. "I was much of a tenderfoot," he said. "I have found, however, that these problems of the western states also affect the interests of the whole country. The great resources of the country are neither local nor sectional." And he went on to show that he had made a study of the land questions.

PRZEMYSL MAY SOON FALL

Russian Bombardment Said to Be Very Effective.

London, Oct. 16.—An observer from the army besieging Przemyśl, according to a Petrograd dispatch to the Havas agency via Paris, has returned to the Russian capital and reports that the Russians have bombarded the fortress unceasingly day and night and the garrison has been destroyed. Wednesday 3,000 Austrians attempted a sortie. The Russians allowed them to approach close to the Russian lines and then annihilated them with rapid fire.

The surrender of Przemyśl, says the observer, is only a question of days.

WILSON FOR BUDGET PLAN

President Says Appropriations Next Year Must Be Smaller.

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson reiterated his determination that government appropriations next year shall be less than those of this year and that strict economy be observed in all departments.

President Wilson is hopeful of the establishment soon of a budget system under which the finances of the government can be handled in a more businesslike way.

THE ANOKA CITY MANAGER IN TOWN

F. M. Sammis, Guest of Officials of City of Brainerd, Examines Street Work Improvements

COMPLIMENTS CITY ON RECORD

Anoka Attracted to Brainerd and Anxious to See What is Causing Era of Boosting in City

F. M. Sammis, city manager of Anoka, was in the city today and was the guest of nearly all the city officials of Brainerd. In company with C. D. Peacock, city engineer, he toured Brainerd and examined all its industries and city improvement work.

Mr. Sammis is the cost accountant, systematizer and estimator, in addition to being the city manager of Anoka.

Anoka is under the commission form of government adopted last spring and is now trying out the city manager plan. But Anoka, said Mr. Sammis, is like a lot of other towns in Minnesota which swallows a dose of medicine and may find it hard to take.

This year, under city manager plan the town has put in six miles of cement sidewalks, and has established the grade for streets, something absolutely needed, as the town is built on a hillside. Pavements and sewer are on the program for city improvement work. One block of reinforced concrete pavement has been laid by the city and its completion was celebrated with a municipal dance on the pavement.

Mr. Sammis was in Brainerd to see what progress this city has made and gives Brainerd credit for wonderful advancement. Anoka was a town when Brainerd was but a trading post. Anoka had 12,000 people when Brainerd was not even thought of. Anoka now is down to 6,000 population and has awakened to the fact that it must be up and doing. And any one familiar with the town now knows she is alive and awake.

Mr. Sammis praised especially the energy of Brainerd people and its officers in planning city work and improvements to tide over periods of depression and praised especially the bridge fill, street work, the new city hall and the court house planned. He had a good word for the Chamber of Commerce and was pleased with the spirit of goodwill and boosting evident on all sides in Brainerd.

"All our municipalities in the state," said Mr. Sammis, "should get together and exchange ideas. Boost for your state and your home town. If you can't boost, then say nothing. In my little visit to Brainerd I picked up a lot of valuable information that will be of benefit to Anoka and if any of the gentlemen who have so kindly shown me around in Brainerd and the vicinity ever visit Anoka, we shall be pleased to return the courtesy and perhaps show them a few points that may enlighten them in city management and government."

"In municipal government," said Mr. Sammis, "we must cut out the personal equation. We've all got to get together and pull together and boost together."

Mr. Sammis left on the afternoon train for his home, well pleased with his visit in Brainerd.

MORE RIPE STRAWBERRIES

Rev. Harry Knowles, Formerly of Brainerd, Picks Them in His Garden in Superior

The highest latitude north for ripe strawberries has switched from Brainerd to Superior, Wis., where Rev. Harry W. Knowles, formerly of Brainerd, has been picking them in his garden. The strawberry crown has been snatched from Brainerd, but the string beans second crop honors still repose at Brainerd. Mrs. Julius Deering's garden yielding large quantities of these toothsome vegetables.

The Superior Telegram article on Rev. Knowles' strawberries reads as follows:

"Strawberries, some of them as much as four inches in circumference were picked this morning by Rev. Harry Knowles, of the East End Presbyterian church, in his garden this morning. The berries were entirely ripe, and fully as well flavored as berries picked earlier in the season."

Rev. Knowles found the berries while he was picking flowers off the berry plants, they being in full blossom at this time. The plants are of the Late Wilson variety, which bear fruit until snow and frost prevents.

Raspberries are also in bloom in Rev. Knowles' garden though this he considers to be a freak condition. He has five varieties of plants and next year will be able to pick strawberries from June until the time snow falls.

WINK ADMIRES CITY OF BRAINERD

Lightning Artist Painting Pictures at Michael's Store Gives Impressions of Brainerd

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WORK

Mentions Activity of Kokomo, Saginaw, Richmond, Valparaiso in Securing Factories

"You have a beautiful little city here but you seem to be very short on factories which employ labor," said W. P. Wink, the lightning landscape artist who entertains the large crowds in front of Michael's windows. "My work takes me to a large number of towns and cities and I have noted the results to be accomplished by a live commercial organization organized as your Chamber of Commerce is here."

"Kokomo, Indiana, was perhaps the dearest town in that state a few years ago. It was called the 'Grave Yard.' Originally it was a gas town but when that played out it was left without resources. They organized a live commercial organization, went after things and today have sixty-five factories contributing to the prosperity of their city."

"Saginaw Mich., corresponds very much to your little city. They too had the lumber interests and when they went they were without resources. The commercial organization there has the support of every business man and the city is now famous as a manufacturing city."

"Richmond, Indiana, is a live city today because of the work done by their live commercial organization. They secured among other things a branch factory of the Maxwell Auto company which gives employment to a large number of people."

"Valparaiso, Indiana, secured a large chinaware decorating concern which employs a great number of people through live business methods."

"I was in Lafayette, Indiana, about a year ago when 62 members organized their commercial organization. To date they have secured three factories."

"Those cities which are sitting idle awaiting for something to come their way have a good long steady job but my observation is that those cities, with any natural advantages at all, who put forth a reasonable effort are generally successful in securing something for their good."

"The time is here, and you see the results everywhere, where cities are being made and do not 'just grow.'"

W. T. Hutchens, Nicholson, Ga., had a severe attack of rheumatism. His feet, ankles and joints were swollen, and moving about was very painful. He was certainly in a bad way when he started to take Foley Kidney Pills. More Than 1,000 Acres Set Aside for Game Preserve Within Seven Miles From Duluth

Duluth, Oct. 14.—More than 1,000 acres have been set aside as a game preserve within seven miles of the center of Duluth. The establishment of this preserve has been accomplished through Fred Ward, superintendent of the work farm, and the board of control of the institution.

One of the first causes for the setting aside of this tract was the danger in which prisoners were constantly placed while at work in the brush and woods. It was also considered highly important that such a tract be set aside where game could be secure from the rifle of the sportsman. Sportsmen in general are well pleased with the arrangement.

The regulations against hunting are strictly enforced, and when hunters are found on the grounds they are ejected at once.

THE ANOKA CITY MANAGER IN TOWN

F. M. Sammis, Guest of Officials of City of Brainerd, Examines Street Work Improvements

COMPLIMENTS CITY ON RECORD

Anoka Attracted to Brainerd and Anxious to See What is Causing Era of Boosting in City

F. M. Sammis, city manager of Anoka, was in the city today and was the guest of nearly all the city officials of Brainerd. In company with C. D. Peacock, city engineer, he toured Brainerd and examined all its industries and city improvement work. Mr. Sammis is the cost accountant, systematizer and estimator, in addition to being the city manager of Anoka.

Anoka is under the commission form of government adopted last spring and is now trying out the city manager plan. But Anoka, said Mr. Sammis, is like a lot of other towns in Minnesota which swallows a dose of medicine and may find it hard to take.

This year, under city manager plan the town has put in six miles of cement sidewalks, and has established the grade for streets, something absolutely needed, as the town is built on a hillside. Pavements and sewer are on the program for city improvement work. One block of reinforced concrete pavement has been laid by the city and its completion was celebrated with a municipal dance on the pavement.

Mr. Sammis was in Brainerd to see what progress this city has made and gives Brainerd credit for wonderful advancement. Anoka was a town when Brainerd was but a trading post. Anoka had 12,000 people when Brainerd was not even thought of. Anoka now is down to 6,000 population and has awakened to the fact that it must be up and doing. And any one familiar with the town now knows she is alive and awake.

Mr. Sammis praised especially the energy of Brainerd people and its officers in planning city work and improvements to tide over periods of depression and praised especially the bridge fill, street work, the new city hall and the court house planned. He had a good word for the Chamber of Commerce and was pleased with the spirit of goodwill and boosting evident on all sides in Brainerd.

"All our municipalities in the state," said Mr. Sammis, "should get together and exchange ideas. Boost for your state and your home town. If you can't boost, then say nothing. In my little visit to Brainerd I picked up a lot of valuable information that will be of benefit to Anoka and if any of the gentlemen who have so kindly shown me around in Brainerd and the vicinity ever visit Anoka, we shall be pleased to return the courtesy and perhaps show them a few points that may enlighten them in city management and government."

"In municipal government," said Mr. Sammis "we must cut out the personal equation. We've all got to get together and pull together and boost together."

Mr. Sammis left on the afternoon train for his home, well pleased with his visit in Brainerd.

Rev. Harry Knowles, Formerly of Brainerd, Picks Them in His Garden in Superior

The highest latitude north for ripe strawberries has switched from Brainerd to Superior, Wis., where Rev. Harry W. Knowles, formerly of Brainerd, has been picking them in his garden. The strawberry crown has been snatched from Brainerd, but the string beans second crop honors still repose at Brainerd. Mrs. Julius Deering's garden yielding large quantities of these toothsome vegetables.

The Superior Telegram article on Rev. Knowles' strawberries reads as follows:

"Strawberries, some of them as much as four inches in circumference were picked this morning by Rev. Harry Knowles, of the East End Presbyterian church, in his garden this morning. The berries were entirely ripe, and fully as well flavored as berries picked earlier in the season."

Rev. Knowles found the berries while he was picking flowers off the berry plants, they being in full bloom at this time. The plants are of the Late Wilson variety, which bear fruit until snow and frost prevents.

Raspberries are also in bloom in Rev. Knowles' garden though this he considers to be a freak condition. He has five varieties of plants and next year will be able to pick strawberries from June until the time snow falls.

WINK ADMIRES CITY OF BRAINERD

Lightning Artist Painting Pictures at Michael's Store Gives Impressions of Brainerd

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WORK

Mentions Activity of Kokomo, Saginaw, Richmond, Valparaiso in Securing Factories

"You have a beautiful little city here but you seem to be very short on factories which employ labor," said W. P. Wink, the lightning landscape artist who entertains the large crowds in front of Michael's windows. "My work takes me to a large number of towns and cities and I have noted the results to be accomplished by a live commercial organization organized as your Chamber of Commerce is here."

"Kokomo, Indiana, was perhaps the dearest town in that state a few years ago. It was called the 'Grave Yard.' Originally it was a gas town but when that played out it was left without resources. They organized a live commercial organization, went after things and today have sixty-five factories contributing to the prosperity of their city."

"Saginaw Mich., corresponds very much to your little city. They too had the lumber interests and when they went they were without resources. The commercial organization there has the support of every business man and the city is now famous as a manufacturing city."

Memory Awakes

What care I for the war or who may lose? Thank God that I am old and these dim eyes
Long since wept dry. Fear in her hideous guise
No more can haunt my pillow till the long night flies,
Whispering her dreadful tale.

What is't to me that others' sons must go?
My share is paid in three mounds side by side.
And I live on, who gladly would have died,
With naught to lose, whatever may now betide—
Whether 'tis win or fall.

Women may lie with open eyes till the faint dawn
Thinking of lips that bubble feebly to a darkening sky—
Gray hands that clutch a water flask long since run dry—
Or husbands, lovers, sons—but not so I.
On dreamless seas I sail.

Prate not to me of war! I've had my fill of death and sacrifice and bitter tears.
You marching feet and blaring music in my ears
But read apart my graves, now green these many years—
Make Time Past drop its veil.

HOW WILD ELEPHANTS ARE CAPTURED IN INDIA.

Hunt Permitted Every Fifth Year.
What Huge Beasts Are Used For.

"This is the year of the 'elephant battle' in the great forests of Mysore, India.

The hunting of these gigantic animals is permitted in India only every fifth year. On the average from 200 to 250 wild elephants are captured during the battle season, and these are trained for the various purposes for which the Asiatic elephant is used.

In view of the vast strength possessed by full grown elephants, it seems at first sight almost incredible that they can be captured in herds, and quickly subdued to the will of their masters. At the present time, in Mysore, the regular methods of capturing wild elephants is for a large number of natives to go into the jungle, some mounted on tamed elephants and many on foot, and to make a great noise and hubbub, which results in driving herds of the wild elephants into stockades or often into ponds of water, which have previously been surrounded on all sides, except at the approaches, by immensely strong palisades. As soon as the herd is cornered the passages that had been left open are suddenly closed, and then the train ed elephants are brought into the stockade and subdued the perplexed prisoners.

In India elephants are no longer captured, as they still are in Africa, by means of a large pitfall in the ground. In these traps they are often seriously injured or killed. The Indian elephant is somewhat smaller than the African and differs from it in other ways, as for instance, in the fact that tusks are possessed only by the males, while both sexes have them in Africa.

With his enormous muscles and his dead weight of five or six tons in elephants can pull down or root up small trees, can pick up huge logs with his trunk and carry or throw them around like sticks, and since he is a very tractable beast when well tamed, he often does farm work of which a team of horses would be incapable. He can make a fence or place huge blocks of stone in a wall. He is often employed to drag artillery wagons.

On a good level road an elephant will march at the rate of five miles an hour, and he is capable of running for short distances with a speed of twenty miles an hour. He can carry in regular service from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds.

GERMANS SWARM LIKE BEES.

Wounded Britisher Describes Irresistible Attacks in Advance on Paris.

A striking personal description of the work of the British expeditionary force, including the last heavy fighting outside Paris, is given by a driver of the royal artillery who has been in the front line.

"The awfullest work of all began where we were posted to resist the German rush on Paris. On one slope leading to a position where our guns were posted the ground was slippery with blood, which was like a river at the foot, where there was an ever-increasing pile of dead, dying and wounded.

"The fiercest fighting took place when the Germans tried to force a passage of the river at various points. As they came up the fords they were galled terribly by the rifle fire, and we kept plugging them with shells as fast as we could. For awhile it didn't seem to be of any use, for as one man fell another stepped forward to take his place. They had evidently made up their minds to get the pontoons into position regardless of cost in lives.

CHAPTER XX.

HELL-FIRE.

But by this stage in his history Mr. Law had arrived at a state of mind immune to surprise at the discovery that he had once more failed to elude the vigilance and pertinacity of the woman who sought his life.

He viewed the schooner with no more display of emotion than resided in narrowing eyelids and a tightening of the muscles about his mouth.

"Much farther to go?" he inquired presently, in a colorless voice.

"At our present pace—say, two hours."

"And will that enable us to hold our own?"

"Just about," Barcus allowed, squinting critically at the chase; "she's some footer, that schooner; and this is just the wind she likes best."

"How much lead have we got?"

"A mile or so—none too much."

"Anything to be done to mend matters?"

"Nothing—but pray, if you remember how."

In the end they made it by a narrow margin. The face of Judith Trine was distinctly revealed by the chill gray light of early dawn to those aboard the power cruiser as she swept up through the reaches of New Bedford harbor and aimed for the first wharf that promised a fair landing on the main waterfront of the city.

There was neither a policeman nor a watchman of any sort in sight.

Nor was there, for all his hopes and prayers, based on the telegram to Digby, a sign of a motor car.

Still, not much of the street was revealed. The docks on either hand were walled and roofed, cutting off the view.

If they ran for it, they must surely be overhauled. Something must be done to hinder the crew of the schooner from landing.

"Here!" he cried sharply to Barcus. "You take Rose and hurry to the street and find that motor-car. I know she's there. Digby never failed me yet!"

"But you—"

"Don't waste time worrying about me. I'll be with you in three shakes. I'm only going to put a spoke in Judith's wheel. I've got a scheme!"

As for his scheme—he had none other than to give them battle, to sacrifice himself if need be, to make sure the escape of Rose.

Sheer luck smiled on him to this extent, that in turning his eye lighted on a four-foot length of stout, three-inch scantling, an excellently formidable club.

But soon, disarmed, his case was desperate—and there were two air-ready safe upon the dock and others madly scrambling up to reinforce them.

Wildly he cast about for some substitute weapon, he leaped toward a small pyramid of little but heavy kegs, and seizing one, swung it overhead and cast it full force into the midst of his nearest enemy; so that this one doubled up convulsively, with a sickish grunt, and vanished in turn over the end of the wharf.

His fellow followed with less injury. But Alan had no time to wonder whether the man had tripped and thrown himself in his effort to escape a second hurtling keg, or had turned coward and fled. It was enough that he had returned, precipitately and heavily, to the schooner.

The keg, meeting with no resistance, pursued him even to the deck, where the force of its impact split its seams. None of the combatants, however, Alan least of all, noticed that the powder that filtered out was black and coarse. Alan, indeed, had only the haziest notion that they were powder-kegs he used as ammunition. That they were heavy and hurt when they collided with human flesh and bone was all that interested him.

In the same breath he heard a friendly voice shout warning far up the dock, and knew that Barcus was coming to his aid.

A glance over-shoulder, too, discovered the cause of the warning; two men who had thus far escaped his attentions were maneuvering to fall upon him from behind. The bound required to evade them brought him face to face with Judith as she landed on the dock.

"Oh," she cried, "I hate you, I hate you—"

"So you've said, my dear, but—"

His final words were not audible even to himself. In his confidence (now that Barcus was taking care of the others) and his impatience with the woman, and in his perhaps unworthy wish to demonstrate conclusively how cheap he held her, Alan had tossed the pistol over the end of the wharf.

It was an old-fashioned weapon, and the force with which it struck the deck released the hammer.

Instantly the 44 cartridge blazed into the open head of a broken powder keg.

And with a roar like the tramp of doom and a mighty gust of flame and smoke the decks of the schooner were riven and shattered; her masts tottered and fell . . .

CHAPTER XXL

Anticlimax.

Alan came to himself supported by Barcus—his senses still reeling from the concussion of that thunderbolt which he had so unwittingly loosed—the cloud of sulphurous smoke and yet dissipated by the wind.

Judith lay at his feet, stunned; and round about other figures of men insensible, if not, for all he could say, dead.

And then Barcus was hustling him unceremoniously down the wharf.

"Come! Come!" he rallied Alan. "Pull yourself together and keep a stiff upper lip. Rose is waiting in the car, and if you don't want to be arrested you'll stir your stumps, my son! That explosion is going to bring the worthy burghers of New Bedford buzzing round our ears like a swarm of hornets!"

His prediction was justified even before it was made; already the nearby dwellings were vomiting half-clothed humanity; already a score of people were galloping down toward the head of the wharf; and in their number a policeman appeared as if by magic.

And while the man hesitated Alan grabbed him by the shoulder, threw him bodily from the car, dropped into his seat, cried a warning to Rose, and threw in the clutch. The machine responded without a jar; they were a hundred feet distant from the scene of the accident before Alan was fairly settled in his place.

As he grew more and more calm, he congratulated himself on having drawn an excellent car in the lottery of chance. It was light, but the motor ran famously, and it was not capable of a racing pace it would serve his ends as speedily as was consistent with reasonable care for the life of the woman he loved.

Yet his congratulations were premature; they were not ten minutes out of the environs of the city when Rose left her seat and knelt behind him, to communicate the intelligence that they were already being pursued.

A heavy touring car, she said it was, driven by a man, a woman in the seat by his side—Judith the latter, the man an old employee of her father's by the name of Marrophat.

Marrophat!

Alan remembered that one. He could only trust in his skill as a driver, and skill is the lesser factor in such a race.

They could overtake the fugitives practically when they would. But for some weird, incomprehensible reason they chose to hang a certain distance in the rear, a distance that could readily be bridged by two minutes of furious driving.

Why? In the succeeding quarter-hour the calmness of fatalism became Alan's. They were biding their time for some secret and fatal purpose. The blow was predestined to fall, but cruelly deferred.

For his own part, he drove like an exceptionally cunning madman. . . . And then, quite clearly, he recognized the time and the place and the character of the road that lay before him as the car sped like a dragon-fly down a slight grade.

From the bottom of the grade it swung away in a wide, graceful curve, bordered for some distance by railroad tracks on a slightly lower level.

He had guessed the fiendish plan of the other driver only too truly.

As they approached at express speed the stretch where the road paralleled the tracks Alan sought to hug the left-hand side of the road, but in vain.

Jury Returns Verdict for More Than $1,200,000.

New York, Oct. 15.—A verdict in favor of Edwin Gould in his suit against Augustus Heinze for the recovery of $1,200,000, a part of the purchase price of stock in the Mercantile National bank, with interest thereon, was returned by a jury in the state supreme court here.

While the jury was out Justice Page sent in instructions that the jury must bring in a verdict for the whole amount or nothing.

His Mission.

"I understand that you have called to ask for my daughter's hand?"

"Oh, no; nothing like that."

"Then—"

"She and I settled all that. What I have called for is to find out what part of the house you are going to turn over to us when we are married?"—Houston Post.

EXPLODING EXPLOSIVES.

One of Two Methods, Combustion or Detonation, Is Used.

An explosive is a body which, under the influence of heat or shock, or both, is, speaking popularly, instantaneously resolved entirely or almost so into gases.

Practical explosives consist either of bodies such as nitroglycerin and nitrocellulose, which are explosive in themselves or mixtures of ingredients which separately are or may be non-explosive, but when intimately mixed are capable of being exploded.

Explosives are exploded either by simple ignition, as in the case of black gunpowder, or by means of a detonator containing mercury fulminate.

The molecules of an explosive may be regarded as in a state of unstable chemical equilibrium. A stable state of equilibrium is brought about by the sudden decomposition of the original compounds with the evolution of heat. An explosion is thus an extremely rapid decomposition, accompanied by the production of a large volume of gas and the development of much heat.

There are two well defined modes of explosion which can be described as combustion and detonation. In the former case the explosive is simply ignited, and combustion takes place by transference of heat from layer to layer of the explosive. The rapidity with which the combustion proceeds depends not only on the physical form of the explosive, but also on the pressure under which the decomposition takes place. When in the form of fine grains combustion proceeds much more quickly than when the grains are large.

Detonation, on the other hand, has to be started by a sufficiently strong impulse, such as the explosion of a charge of mercury fulminate; it proceeds much more rapidly and is due to the formation of an explosion wave that has a velocity of thousands of meters a second.

"High" explosives indicate those, such as dynamites and nitrate of ammonia explosives, which detonate and have a greater shattering power than the "low" explosives. — New York World.

GHENT IS OCCUPIED BY GERMAN FORCES.

London, Oct. 13.—The Belgian town of Ghent now is occupied by the Germans, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company.

Chians have arrived at Selzaete, a short distance from Ghent, and the commander announced that 6,000 soldiers must be quartered on that village.

Vesuvius.

Vesuvius cut but a small figure in history till the latter half of the first century of the Christian era. In 73 B. C. its crater served as a camp of refuge to a band of gladiators. In 63 A. D. the serenity was broken by a violent grumbling that manifested itself in a severe earthquake that shook up the surrounding region. For sixteen years the subterranean rumblings continued at intervals, and in the year 79 A. D. came the great catastrophe in which Herculaneum and Pompeii were overwhelmed. In 1631 there was another terrible explosion, and since that time Vesuvius has seldom been at rest for many years together.—Exchange.

"Oh, no; nothing like that."

"Then—"

"She and I settled all that. What I have called for is to find out what part of the house you are going to turn over to us when we are married?"—Houston Post.

EXPLODING EXPLOSIVES.

One of Two Methods, Combustion or Detonation, Is Used.

An explosive is a body which, under the influence of heat or shock, or both, is, speaking popularly, instantaneously resolved entirely or almost so into gases.

Practical explosives consist either of bodies such as nitroglycerin and nitrocellulose, which are explosive in themselves or mixtures of ingredients which separately are or may be non-explosive, but when intimately mixed are capable of being exploded.

Explosives are exploded either by simple ignition, as in the case of black gunpowder, or by means of a detonator containing mercury fulminate.

The molecules of an explosive may be regarded as in a state of unstable chemical equilibrium. A stable state of equilibrium is brought about by the sudden decomposition of the original compounds with the evolution of heat. An explosion is thus an extremely rapid decomposition, accompanied by the production of a large volume of gas and the development of much heat.

There are two well defined modes of explosion which can be described as combustion and detonation. In the former case the explosive is simply ignited, and combustion takes place by transference of heat from layer to layer of the explosive. The rapidity with which the combustion proceeds depends not only on the physical form of the explosive, but also on the pressure under which the decomposition takes place. When in the form of fine grains combustion proceeds much more quickly than when the grains are large.

Detonation, on the other hand, has to be started by a sufficiently strong impulse, such as the explosion of a charge of mercury fulminate; it proceeds much more rapidly and is due to the formation of an explosion wave that has a velocity of thousands of meters a second.

"High" explosives indicate those, such as dynamites and nitrate of ammonia explosives, which detonate and have a greater shattering power than the "low" explosives. — New York World.

Vesuvius.

Vesuvius cut but a small figure in history till the latter half of the first century of the Christian era. In 73 B. C. its crater served as a camp of refuge to a band of gladiators. In 63 A. D. the serenity was broken by a violent grumbling that manifested itself in a severe earthquake that shook up the surrounding region. For sixteen years the subterranean rumblings continued at intervals, and in the year 79 A. D. came the great catastrophe in which Herculaneum and Pompeii were overwhelmed. In 1631 there was another terrible explosion, and since that time Vesuvius has seldom been at rest for many years together.—Exchange.

"Well, then," replied the dear girl, "let us be friends once more—and never propose to me again."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
